Covering a total area of 2,500 square metres, the historic Altes Kraftwerk was previously used to build generators and electricity substations. Its unique selling point is its architecture. The highlights of the Altes Kraftwerk are a stationary Faraday cage and a crane way that can carry around 40 tonnes. This historic factory location offers companies, associations and private individuals space for art and culture, as well as for corporate and convention events. The “Space for People & Space for Emotions” concept is synonymous with the development and revival of historic cultural buildings. Once-forgotten structures have been revamped and enchant guests with their uncompromising atmosphere.
